DR. PRITCHETT LECTURES

Pres. Pritchett of the Carnegie Foundation Speaks on "Who Ought to Go to College".

President Henry S. Pritchett of the Carnegie Foundation addressed on Friday evening the students of Middlebury College. President Pritchett is spending some time in Vermont in connection with the study being made for the Educational Commission of which Judge Watson is the chairman. In the afternoon he addressed the faculty and in the evening met the student body in Middlebury College Gymnasium.

Dr. Pritchett spoke on the theme Who ought to go to College?

He argued that it was a common fallacy to believe that every boy or girl who can by any means get into College ought to go. The College, he said, was on the whole the best agency yet devised in civilized society for the training of youth, but it did not at all follow that every youth should be pointed collegeward. On the contrary he said there are many in American Colleges who would be far better off to find their education in another way.

Is there any criterion, he asked, to determine who ought to go to College?

The speaker urged that there was one test which the student could himself apply, namely he could ask himself, Why do I go to College ? If he answers this question frankly, clearly, conscientiously he will pretty surely determine whether he ought to go to College or not. No student who could not make clear to himself the reason for being in College was ready for College. He urged not only possible students but their parents to address themselves to the question which boy or girl ought to go to College, not the ordinary question how can we get all our boys and girls into College? Such a course the speaker thought would mean fewer failures for students and a vast improvement for the Colleges.

President Pritchett took occasion to rap the present day method of "rooting" at College games. He said he had been a ball player himself and urged that College men ought to free their games from the continual "barking" and personal appeals to the players introduced from the professional games. There was no excuse, he urged, for gentlemen to indulge in this practice, it was irritating to the audience and unsportsmanlike in the players.

President Pritchett referred only incidentally to the work which brings him to Vermont, and made a plea for an educational patriotism big enough to deal with educational questions in Vermont from the standpoint of the whole State rather than from the point of view of a single educational institution.

The lecture was appreciated very much by the faculty and student body. President Pritchell was formerly President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has achieved signal success with his work for the Carnegie Foundation making it not only an institution for the rewarding of educators but also a definite force for efficient education itself.

MIDDLEBURY DEFEATS UNION UNIVERSITY

Aylward Proves Too Much for Schenectady Boys. Union Uses Three Pitchers Trying to Prevent Defeat.

The varsity took an excursion to Union on Wednesday, April 30. The game began promptly at half-past four and ended just as the shades of night were making the last twenty-yard sprint. "Zeb" Aylward, the "pea-green" member of the pitching staff, had charge of the catapault. His aim was effective enough to strike out fifteen. This, with nine runs, was sufficient to end Union's celebration.

Middlebury took it easy in the first. Union had to take it easy. Zeb struck out the first three, Seeing that Union insisted on Middlebury leading off, things started in the second. The pitcher refused to throw out Alyward. Leonard walked serenely to first. Robinson, not to be outdone, also drew a pass. Loder failed to connect. Haskins came to bat. He found an air current headed for right field and used it to send in "Zeb". The pitcher, feeling that Leonard by standing on third was lowering that corner of the field, threw the ball into the next lot. Leonard crossed the pan. "Casey" Jones refused to be a hero, but Triggs refused to take anything less than a three-bagger, specifying center field as the best place for it. Haskins and Robinson made the circuit. Weafer tried to puncture the second base man, but the ball beat him out to first.

Union thought that they were all coming back when Triggs' error placed Barclay on first, but "Zeb" enacted the ninth inning episode commonly associated with "Dick" Merrill and three more bats were thrown into the wood pile. Leonard reached first on Hutchins' error in the third, but could get no farther.

"Zeb" started the Union half of the third with his seventh strikeout. Then Hutchins punctured a hit through short. J. Beaver made strike out number eight. Hutchins was thief enough to reach third. D. Beaver put Triggs into the error column and then stole second. Nauman secured a single, sending in Beaver and Hutchins. Nauman, not content, stole second. Barclay drove a double to Haskins' territory and Nauman came home. Haughtin singled just when everyone was wondering what to expect next, Zimmer struck out. Nothing deserves mention in the Middlebury side of the fourth except Loder's sacrifice bunt, and that went to waste when Haskins hit an infield fly to short and Jones gave an assist to the second baseman. Nothing further need be said about Union except that ten men faced Aylward in the last three innings, three of whom had some grievance against the atmosphere.

Things happened for Middlebury in the eighth. Weafer drove one to left field. Captain Harry put one over the center fielder's head for two bases. Aylward placed one in right, giving right of way to home for "Weaf" and "Harry". Leonard hit to short, who made the mistake of getting Alyward at second. Robinson walked. The next incident was a wild pitch. "Bob" Loder produced a single, sending in Robinson and Leonard, but was put out by trying to stretch it to a double. Haskins drew a pass. Jones relieved Union's agony by striking out.

Middlebury added another in the ninth. Triggs hit to short, who threw the ball in the direction of the big dipper. Union's pitcher hit the back stop. Weafer was thrown out at first. Aylward contributed a timely hit, sending in Triggs. Leonard lifted one to center field for out number three.

Union was reconciled and gave no trouble in the final score.

The line-up and score was as follows :

The Union team has an unusually large number of freshmen upon it due to the fact that seven of last year's team graduated at the last Commencement. Moreover, the captain, who had been stationed at second base, was obliged to resign his position on account of scholastic difficulties. The team received excellent treatment throughout its stay at Schenectady.

DR. D. G. REILLY PRAISED

Dr. D. G. Reilly, Class of '91. Performed Generous Services at Dayton, Ohio.

Dr. D. G. Reilly of the class of '91 was appointed chief sanitary officer of the 15th district of the city of Dayton during the recent flood. This district was struck the hardest. Three of the river banks broke here and the flood took everything before it. For three days and nights Dr. Reilly and his family were obliged to stay in the garret of their home with little food and no water except that which they were able to get during the rain. The efficient service performed by Dr. Reilly is attested by the following letter.

DAYTON, OHIO, April 24th, 1913.

Dr. D. G. Reilly, Dist. Sanitary Officer Dist. No. 15. 2nd and Madison Sts., City.

Dear Doctor :

As the work of the Sanitary Department, in which organization you are an officer, empowered with the authority and responsibility of cleaning up a section of the city, is about completed, I take this occasion of expressing to you my appreciation of the valuable service you have rendered in fulfilling the duties of your office. The work you have done in cleaning up your district, and in safeguarding the health of the City, has been accomplished in splendid way, with considerable sacrifice on your part, and with a keen sense of civic duty.

The work of the Sanitary Department has been carried on by an organization perfected in part under your direction, to accomplish the greatest amount of good. The early completion of the task confronting you is evidence of your effective organizing ability, and you have pushed the work with a vigor and an enthusiasm that calls for the highest praise. I congratulate you on the commendable service you have rendered the City of Dayton, and the splendid way in which you have fulfilled your trust more than justifies my selection of you as a Sanitary Officer.

With best wishes that unbounded success and deserved recognition, may come to you in the future, I am

Very truly yours,
T. RHODES.
Major Medical Corps, U. S. Army, Chief Sanitary Officer.

Be Honest.

THE CAMPUS uses this space to criticise those members of the student body who persist in trying to sneak into base ball games without paying admission. The expenses of the athletic teams are very large. To meet them every admission is needed. Everyone is aware that a table is placed between Painter Hall and the chapel where tickets can be purchased. Why keep those, who are charged with collecting on the field, running everywhere to get the money. Come in at the gate. Leave your ticket in sight. We also desire to express our disapproval of those who sit in the reading room or in the gymnasium during the games. Those individuals who can not pay their admission and who do not desire to borrow the money would command much more respect if they remained in their rooms. Just notice the men who do it. How many of them answer the employment bulletins? Those men who work for fifteen cents an hour in some one's garden or at a wood pile, seem to also provide themselves with independence and honesty. A little pride is a rich blessing.

Freshmen Disregard Customs.

The freshmen should remember that the abolishing of the "corporal punishment", which was formerly hanging over his erring head as a reward for his wrongs, does not necessarily mean that all the time honored rules respecting freshman conduct have been dropped likewise. Smoking on the streets is one of these forbidden pleasures and there are several cases lately perpetrated in which this rule was badly shattered. Now, of course, if the freshmen would rather have "the sword of Damocles" hanging uncomfortably near them, this is the right course to follow but we believe and hope that this kindly word to the wise is sufficient and that the ways of the simple life will be more carefully followed the rest of the year.

Why not have a moving up day. Some senior or junior please step forward.

Another Kaleidoscope Deficit.

The financing of the Kaleidoscope has always been a burdensome matter and has rested especially on the junior class. The junior class is sponsor for the book but it is, in the final analysis, a College and not a class undertaking.

This year the book has been condensed very largely and in view of more favorable terms in the contract it is expected that the final cost of the book will be considerably less than that of the 1913 Kaleidoscope. It has been the policy of the board to confine the elimination of detail and the condensing of material to that part of the book which varies but little from year to year. Last year's Kaleidoscope had a record grind section both in size and quality. This years book contains an even larger grind section. The board has held to it that in photographs and grinds there shall be no reduction, deeming them to be the life and spirit of the book.

It is to be hoped that the student body will realize that unless they lend their support to putting this venture on a firm financial basis the year book will soon be a thing of the past. A number of alumni have sent in orders for books and with the hearty co-operation of the student body the black cloud hanging over the financing of a year book in this college will be raised.

Very Unfortunate.

Of Saturday's game, all we can say is that we were disappointed. In playing an institution so near at hand it was the duty of the coaches not merely to take care to win but metaphorically to eat them up. A first string pitcher ought to have started the game with every man on the alert. For the team that gave Yale the game of the season to merely win from Middlebury was sad to say the least.—Burlington Free Press.

It is well when attempting "metamorphically to eat them up" not to commence by biting off more than can be, metaphorically, "chawn".

Help! Three hundred students seek deliverance from the ashes that were placed on the College walk near the primary school building.

Important Campus Meeting.

At a meeting of THE CAMPUS board, held in the English room on Tuesday, April 28, THE CAMPUS board adopted an organization more or less definite and elected officers. The arrangement as made is temporary and will be changed at any time when the parties elected prove undesirable or the division of labor impractical. It is the present plan of the board to have an editor-in-chief and an assistant editor-in-chief, both of whom will be seniors. The duties incidental to the publication will be divided, part being assumed by the editor-in-chief and part by the assistant editor-in-chief. The board also will elect two associate editors, both of whom are juniors. These will be subordinate to the editors-in-chief, one assuming the work of the editor-in-chief on demand, the other assuming the work of the assistant editor-in-chief on demand. These associate editors will be preferred at the election of editor-in-chief and assistant editor-in-chief. All of the board will co-operate in the preparation of copy. It was felt that the business management, owing to the increased labor involved demanded the services of more than one individual. Accordingly it was agreed that the business manager while overseeing the circulation should concern himself more with the advertising and general account, leaving the main burden upon two circulation editors. One of these circulation managers is to be a man who is a member of the junior class. The other is to be a woman who is a member of any class. The man shall be preferred in elections for business manager. The woman shall continue in office until graduation barring inefficiency. She will have charge of the circulation file and shall keep a record of all subscribers. Both circulation managers shall be entrusted with the task of increasing the circulation. The man will be specially charged with the delivery of the papers and with any duties other than clerical which both circulation managers shall agree upon.

Many alumni are behind on their subscriptions. They will all be notified and continued carelessness will compel us to cancel their names, owing to the postal regulations. When the list is finally arranged no subscriptions will be carried except where payment is made in advance.

The system, now in use, of each organization electing a representative will be retained, but inefficient service will not be tolerated from any member. A notice given to the organization not followed by improvement will be considered ground for dismissal. Such vacancies will be filled by the organization or, if neglected, by the board.

OFFICIAL NEWS.

Rule Regarding Examinations.

At a recent faculty meeting Rule 6 on Examinations, which refers to the opportunities for removing conditions, was amended as follows:—the 3d sentence was cut out and the following substituted:

"No other opportunities for the removal of conditions will be given, except in the following cases:

1. A student unavoidably absent from college at the time set by the Registrar for taking the examination will be given his opportunity immediately upon his return to college.
2. A senior may take an examination for each deficiency, or condition, on the Saturday preceding commencement.
3. If the course in which a student has been conditioned is given in the summer session, he may remove his condition by taking that course and passing at its close an examination which will be based upon the regular college course and, if possible, set by the instructor who gave it."

The additions to the rule are the points in regard to unavoidable absence from examinations and the opportunities which will be given the student to make up conditions in the summer session.

COMMUNICATIONS.

We heartily invite communications aud contributions. A part of this page is reserved for them. The name of the writer must in each case be submitted with the article. Those articles which do not agree, in general, with our opinion or purpose must be printed over the signature of the writer. Others may be signed or not as the contributor desires.

We are looking for communications of all kinds from our readers. Poems, prose selections, editorials, anything that is worthy of note and of interest to the public will be given careful consideration. A box will be placed in the chapel hall and in this may be deposited all contributions of those sufficiently interested to send in their work to THE CAMPUS. We are doing this because we know it isn't easy to run down an editor every time one has a bit of interesting information which he would like to see in print. Come now, keep this movement going. THE CAMPUS needs this outside news and you ought to be patriotic enough to lend a helping hand. Start the stone rolling and show what you can do. Here's your chance and all you have to do is catch on and hold tight.

Turn on the Enthusiasm.

Speaking psychologically the cheering and the singing at the games here need a stimulus. We have the men to do the cheering, women for singing, the best band in the state for playing and a winning team. Now with all these ways of expressing our College Spirit why cannot everyone participate in them, like a real enthusiastic collegiate? Public opinion—"U. V. M,", Union, Boston College, etc.,—forces the writer to acknowledge that both the team and band are par excellence. They have the stimulus, and that stimulus is enthusiasm. It vibrates in every individual connected with both.

Some like incentive should be given by the student body to their cheers and songs. More enthusiasm will improve the cheering. When the cheer leader says, "get into it", do. The Middlebury cheer can be made just as inspiring as that of any other College.

Let the Blue and White cheer come out long, clear and with a vim. Messrs. Cheer Leaders start the enthusiasm at the next game.

Miss Pollard Writes.

THE CAMPUS is all right. Middlebury is changing and we alumni who are away will lose out unless we keep track of what is going on in the old halls—and the new ones that we have never seen. THE CAMPUS helps to keep us up to date, and I never read an issue of it without feeling a heart stirring and a desire to get back and see the village and the campus and the professors and breathe again the College atmosphere. I saw by a recent issue of THE CAMPUS that Dr. Brainerd talked to the students about flowers. And that is only one of the interesting things I read in the paper. Did you read it too?

MARY O. POLLARD, '96.

TRINITY DEFEATS MIDDLEBURY.

Trinity defeated Middlebury on the Campus May 2, by a score of 6-5 after Middlebury had apparently put the game in cold storage.

Haskins and Jones singled at the opening of the first. Triggs landed for three bases, driving in Haskins and Jones. Weafer sent a fly to right field and Triggs made home after the catch. An error by Trinity's first baseman and Jones' hit scored Leonard in the second. Weafer's double, Aylward's single, and Robinson's hit made it five at the end of the third. From this point Middlebury seemed gradually to weaken until finally Trinity sent three across in the sixth.

Aylward's errors gave the first man up a life. Murray drew a hit. Triggs' error, Williams' error, Jones' error and another hit was the way it happened.

Aylward walked Shelly in the seventh. Wisner chose the moment to make a three bagger. Haskins and Triggs relayed the ball back to Williams in time to get Schelly. Jones' error on the next play, however, let in Wisner.

With Trinity only one in the rear, a double stopped the Middlebury attack in the eighth.

Trinity came back with two more runs. Loder's error gave Withington a life. L'Heureux drew a hit. A passed ball placed another on the bases. Two more errors, one by Loder and one by Haskins, made it a real Waterloo.

Middlebury's very disappointing record can be partially explained on the basis of two hard games on the two preceeding days. Aylward who was relieved by Vail in the eighth pitched against Union on Wednesday. This is not said to depreciate in any way Trinity's victory, which was a result of the persistent optimism of the blue and gold. Weafer's stop of a sizzling drive, Triggs' catch back of second base, the Haskins-Triggs-Williams play were some of the bright spots for Middlebury.

1917 CLASS PROSPECTS.

There are many indications that Middlebury will have another excellent entering class next year. Certificates have been filed from two men residing in Pittsfield, Mass., one from Ashtabula, O., one from Albany, N. Y., two from Jericho Center, Vt., one from Marshfield, Mass., one from Walterboro, Me., one from Hampton, Conn., one from Chester Depot, Vt., one from Summit, N. J., one from Corinth, N. Y., one from Groveland, Mass., Certificates have also been filed of two men who plan to enter the Junior Class, one of whom resides in Northfield, Vt., and the other from Parish, N. Y. Certificates have been filed of one woman residing in Burlington, another from North Troy, another from Swanton, another from Jefferson, N. Y., two from Rutland, another from Stowe. In addition many certificates have been received which have not been placed on file. About 300 men have sent in requests for catalogues, which have been forwarded. About sixty men who planned to enter with this year's freshman class are corresponding with the college.

The application of the College for membership on the New England Board of Certification is already influencing the standard of the certificates received. A new form for certification has been adopted which not only states the amount of work done, but the grade obtained. There is a definite movement in the college world to abandon the theory more or less clearly felt that the college is an institution to develop the all-around man and to return to the old idea that the college is first for scholarship and that those who enter college must show high standing or at least a scholastic spirit. Middlebury in applying for membership on the New England Board of Certification allies herself with this movement which began about fifteen years ago. By demanding better preparation from freshmen. the scholastic ability of the student body will be increased. This will result in a definite raising of the college average. A temporary decrease in the entering class may result, but fewer deficiencies will be received.

Student Government Nominations

The Student Government association met May 6 and will meet on next Tuesday at 4 p. m. Everybody turn out to vote on officers for the coming year. The nominations are:

President, Misses Bailey, Haugh and Jenne.

Vice-president, Miss Gladys Wilson.

Treasurer, Misses Asseltine, Blackman, Esten.

Secretary, Misses Buck, Mills, Marion Thomas.

The vice-president will be chosen from the two nominees up for president who do not receive that office and the nominee already up.

Professor Burt Speaks.

On the evening of Wednesday, April 30, Professor Burt spoke to the Alchemist Club "On the Relation Between Microbiology and Chemistry". He explained the way the biologist analyzed a water supply. He also gave explanations of putrefaction of wood and fermentation, and similar phenomena from biologists' point of view. About twenty of the members were present.

James Smith of Ludlow has rented the third tennis court for a pasture.

Resolved: That the Panama Canal Tolls Controversy between the United States and Great Britain should be Arbitrated.

Saturday, May 3, in the McCullough Gymnasium, the Freshmen Debating Society team, supporting the affirmative won over the Norwich Freshmen.

The presiding officer was Hon. John W. Stewart. The judges were Prof. Samuel Eliot Bassett, of the University of Vermont; Prin. Isaac Thomas, of Rutland; and Prin. G. Gordon Newell, of Bristol.

Norwich was represented by Wm. C. Higgins, Edward H. Brooks and Frank P. Skinner. Middlebury by J. B. Jones, Alvin Metcalfe, and J. J. Floyd.

The Middlebury team took the ground first that there was a question in dispute, Great Britain claiming that we were discriminating and that we had promised not to do this, while the United States claims by passing the Panama Canal Toll Act of 1912 that we are not discriminating or that we had a right to in respect to our coastwise traffic. Middlebury following this position with the position that since there is a dispute, we are bound, morally, by our traditional stand on arbitration, and loyally bound by the Arbitration Treaty of 1908.

Norwich's position was that the United States was not bound by the Canal Treaty of 1901, since conditions had changed, or that the treaty could be abrogated at will; that there is no discrimination; that it would be impossible to get a fair arbitration. That there is no discrimination and that this case came under the exceptions of the Arbitrations Treaty of 1908. Therefore, because of this the United States should not arbitrate. The decision was given to Middlebury two to one.

Middlebury met the issue squarely. There is a dispute, therefore it should be arbitrated. Norwich on the other hand missed the issue on several points. The facts that the United States is right in the dispute, that there is no discrimination, are not reason why the question should not be arbitrated. The last point, the weakness of the Arbitration Treaty of 1908 was their strong point, but thay failed to make it.

Both teams are to be complimented on the way they handled the debate. Their audience learned much about one of the leading questions of the day.

At the dance which followed. the debaters and their hearers forgot the issue of the evening and established friendly relations between the pro's and con's.

MRS. WASSON LECTURED

"As college women, who are soon to take their place in the would, you should know what women are doing in the world," said Mrs. Wasson, on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Wasson, the president of the Vermont Federation of Women's clubs, is a most charming, vivacious lady whose personality alone causes one to become enthusiastic over any subject she may be discussing. The theme upon which she spoke to the women of the college was "Club Work of Women in General and of Vermont Women in Particular." Women have many channels of reform along which they work, such as pure food legislation, rural school problems, child labor laws and others which vitally touch our needs of today. Mrs. Wasson told how clubs are formed and of the inspiration gained by contact with progressive women all over the country, and by the strength of organization.

A tea was given in her honor at Pearsons Hall. The hostesses were Mrs. Bryant, Mrs. Collins, and Mrs. McFarland.

NEW COLLEGE LIBRARIAN.

She is succeeded by Miss Leila McNeil, who for the past ten years has been connected with the Public Library at Brookline, Mass. Miss McNeil is a graduate of St. Johnsbury Academy and of Wellesley College in the class of 1902. 1901

That is a vital point which is lacking in ordinary fountain pens. You can readily understand how this is made possible in a Moore when we explain that the pen when not in use lies submerged in ink which keeps it moist and prepared for instant writing, positively eliminating the necessity of shaking.

But that is not all of its strong features. The Moore can be carried in any position without the least fear of leaking. Has a large ink capacity. Always writes freely and evenly, and is easily filled.

MIDDLEBURY DEFEATS BOSTON.

Middlebury defeated Boston College on the Campus on May 1. Vail pitched a very effective game and deserved a shut out.

Middlebury scored one in the first after Haskins had struck out, on McDonald's error, Trigg's sacrifice and Weafer's double to left.

Boston came near making trouble in the fourth when two men walked but Vail evened up with two strike-outs and Murphy's drive to second was smothered by Jones.

Otherwise both sides retired one, two, three, until the fifth, when Middlebury made her total five. Robinson walked but was later caught at second. Leonard placed one in center field, Vail followed with one that was good for two and Leonard brought in run number two. Loder struck out. Haskins drew a hit and gave Boston an opportunity to make an error permitting Vail to cross the plate. Jones hit to short who added another error and Haskins scored.

Middlebury's last run came in the sixth. Williams struck out. Robinson landed for three bases. Leonard walked. Halloron gave a wild pitch and Robinson finished the scoring for Middlebury.

Boston's lone run came in the ninth. Triggs booted L. Conley's ball. Vail relieved himself of a wild pitch allowing Conley to reach third. Nelson lifted a fly to Triggs who drove the ball to Williams. The ball and Williams did not meet. Conley scored. A fly to Jones made out number two. Vail fanned Murphy.

The Boston game was in one sense a disappointment. We anticipated a very hard contest and found the road much easier than estimated. The Boston pitchers failed pointedly throughout the game. Boston played St. Michael's on the following day and was victorious. Norwich defeated them ten to eight on Saturday.

BASE BALL WONDERS PLAY.

The first contest of the far and wide known series between the Middlebury College boarding houses for the honor of the players and the glory of the several cooks, was played on the diamond on Saturday, May 3. It was a battle royal between Walker's and the Sargent House, the former winning by the score of 11 to 4. The great slab artist, Van Ness, formerly of the Hudson River League, downed Ratti, the "speed king", of Proctor, in a red-hot pitcher's battle. Strike outs were numerous and "walks" very few and far between. Prospects at one time were exceedingly bright for the Sargent when "Van" weakened and filled the bases, but the great twirler had been in such tight places before and, getting a tight grip on the ball, he pulled himself together and fanned the mighty "Tyrus" Wright on three wide ones. "Hutch's" batting was a feature, but his speed on the bases was a minus qauntity and this deficiency converted several sure home runs into singles. The result of the series is, of course, still much in doubt, for there are several other teams who are out for blood and gore. Everybody out and cheer the heroes.

Freshmen Get Naughty.

The sophomores held an indignation meeting recently when the freshmen revived to the extent of hanging some baby ribbon on the college flag pole with the numerals 1916 written upon it in red ink. The relation between the two classes has been awfully ferocious during the entire year. The sophomores doubtless pled with tears in their eyes to Billy urging him to remove it, for the hated emblem has gone.

The Middlebury Alumnae residing in Washington, D. C., recently held a "get-together".
